Pawtucket Police Department Recruitment Set to Open

Pawtucket – In an effort to provide top level service in public safety, the Pawtucket Police Department is seeking qualified men and women who have an interest in serving the Pawtucket community through a career in law enforcement.

“We have a very well-trained and dedicated police force here in the City of Pawtucket,” states Chief of Police Paul King. “Our officers are dedicated to serving our community and bringing them professional law enforcement. We are looking to add to those numbers with another strong class of applicants and recruits this year.”

The Pawtucket Police Department is the third largest municipal police department in Rhode Island and is a full-service law enforcement agency comprised of a diverse group of 142 sworn members and more than 50 civilian employees. The department is organized into three divisions: the patrol division, the criminal investigative division and the administrative division. Within each division, the department offers a wide array of opportunities for professional and career development.

The online application process will begin on Thursday, October 1st, 2015 and will remain open through Thursday, December 31, 2015. Candidates currently on the eligibility list will need to reapply. Further information regarding the selection process, salary and benefits and physical fitness standards can be found at www.pawtucketpolice.com or www.pawtucketri.com. The City of Pawtucket is an equal opportunities employer and complies with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

Interested parties may also call 401-728-0500 and dialing extensions 235 or 276 to speak with a representative from the department about the recruitment process.
